

Usando el visor como referencia

Escrito por truman - 27/02/2010 20:58

Este es un pequeño truco que os ayudará a encontrar el blanco cuando utilicéis un visor de muchos aumentos, de todos es sabido que en campos con pocas referencias visuales como es el nuestro a veces es difícil encontrar el blanco, en posición de sentado este problema solo supone un poco mas de tiempo, pero en posiciones forzadas nos lleva al cansancio muscular con el consiguiente error al disparar.

La idea es utilizar la torreta de altura con otro punto de referencia que posicionaremos sobre la lente delantera del visor, mirando como si fueran miras abiertas la torreta sería el alza y la referencia delantera la puntería (puede ser la bisagra de las tapas abatibles), tapamos el blanco con estas referencias y a continuación miramos por el visor, probablemente solo tengamos que corregir un poco la altura y ya tenemos el blanco.

un saludo.
